CLASSICAL STUDIES AS INFORMATION OR AS TRAINING.

By A SCOTCH GRADUATE.

Fresh Books of Travel.

SAUNTERINGS. By CHARLES DUDLEY

WARNER, author of "My Summer in a Garden."

1 vol. 16mo. Uniform with "Bits of Travel," by H. H. $1.50.

"The book contains a little about England and France, more about Switzerland and Holland, and a great deal concerning South Germany and Italy. It is uniform with H. H.'s 'Bits of Travel,' and is not so unlike that book as it is different from most books of travel. There is not a dull page in it; but it glows with a quiet drollery and a genuine wit that is refreshing, and not provoking, as wit too often is."—Springfield Republican.

UPS AND DOWNS ON LAND AND WATER. By AUGUSTUS HOPPIN. Oblong Folio. $10.00.

"'Ups and Downs on Land and Water,' is fairly an outbreak of graphic genius. It consists of a pictorial delineation of picturesque places and humorous characters, seen or encountered in the European tour through England, France, Switzerland, and Germany. It is a notable and unique production. The striking vigor and boldness in the designs are entirely admirable, apart from the humorous conceits which the compositions exhibit."—Appleton's Journal.

CASTILIAN DAYS. By JOHN HAY. 1 vol. 18mo. $2.00.

"We are unable to recall any book of the century, unless it be Kinglake's 'Eothen,' that so completely and admirably gathers up the past and present, and—we had almost said—the future of a country and a people, as does this volume of Mr. Hay's."—Henry Ward Beecher's Christian Union.

"A most attractive volume, in which Colonel Hay writes easily and picturesquely of the cities, streets and buildings, and of the history, politics, and domestic life and character of the inhabitants of that unique, old-fashioned country."—London Spectator.

HOWELLS' WRITINGS.

VENETIAN LIFE. $2.00.

"Mr. Howells deserves a place in first rank of American travellers. This volume thoroughly justifies its title; it does give a true and vivid and almost a complete picture of Venetian life."—Pall Mall Gazette.

ITALIAN JOURNEYS. $2.00.

"The reader who has gone over the ground which Mr. Howells describes will be struck with the life-like freshness and accuracy of his sketches, while he will admire the brilliant fancy which has cast a rich poetical coloring even around the prosaic high-ways of ordinary travel."—New York Tribune.

THEIR WEDDING JOURNEY. Illustrated by HOPPIN. $2.00.

"One of the richest of books."—Hearth and Home.

BITS OF TRAVEL. By H. H. $1.50.

"Some one has said, that, if one could open the mail-bags, and read the women's letters, they would be more entertaining than any books. This volume is an open mail-bag, forwarded from Germany or Rome or the Tyrol. The faded wonders of Europe turn out to be wholly fresh when seen through a fresh pair of eyes, and so the result is very charming."—T. W. HIGGINSON.

"H. H. has gone little out of the beaten track of travel, and yet her sketches are as fresh as though they were Eve's journal in the Garden of Eden."—New York Evening Mail.

MOUNTAINEERING IN THE SIERRA NEVADA. By CLARENCE KING. $2.50.

"A book bracing in tone, vivid in description, exciting in adventure, and abounding in valuable information. Since Tyndall's volume on the Alps, we have read nothing so vigorous and stimulating as Mr. King's narrative of mountain exploration; and it exceeds Tyndall's in the novelty of its subject. The accounts of the ascent of Mount Tyndall, of Mount Shasta, and Mount Whitney, are records of 'brave campaigns in the unknown realm of Nature,' as full of danger as of excitement."—E. P. WHIPPLE.

A RUSSIAN JOURNEY. By EDNA DEAN PROCTOR. $1.50.

"Miss Proctor's 'Russian Journey' is portrayed in that delicious, limpid English of which she is perfect mistress. She is an artist as well as a poet, and the glow of the one and fine, strong touch of the other are equally perceptible in these pictures of Russia."—Brooklyn Union.

THE LANDS OF SCOTT. By JAMES F. HUNNEWELL. 1 vol. 12mo. $2.50.

"It is a delightful epitome of the great author's life and works, the reader being introduced to a detailed acquaintance with these, while he is led through the localities which the genius of Scott has celebrated. These who cannot cross the ocean will visit the scenes of his living romance in its pages, and those who can may double their pleasure by making this volume their compagnon de voyage."—Buffalo Courier.

SIX MONTHS IN ITALY. By GEORGE S. HILLARD. 16mo. $2.00.

"The record of a brilliant episode in the life of a scholar, which has filled his memory with images alike beautiful and enduring. It is almost minute enough in its descriptions for a guide-book, yet abounds in just and sensible remarks, well-informed criticisms, and varied learning."—Putnam's Monthly.

"A charming book, which has become a sort of manual for travellers who visit Florence and Rome."—GEORGE TICKNOR.

NOTES OF TRAVEL AND STUDY IN ITALY. By CHAS. ELIOT NORTON. $1.25.

"Mr. Norton is no ordinary tourist."—Philadelphia Press.

 For sale by all Booksellers. Sent, post paid, on receipt of price by the Publishers.

NOTICE.

Subscribers who have not yet paid their subscriptions, and subscribers to the late AMERICAN LITERARY GAZETTE, whose subscription has expired, if they wish to continue the WEEKLY TRADE CIRCULAR, are respectfully requested to remit the amounts due, either by post-office order, or draft on New York. Small accounts should be paid promptly, as they will neither bear the trouble nor the expense of repeated applications. Subscriptions should invariably be paid in advance.

SPECIAL REQUEST.—We beg to request that those readers who send direct orders to our advertisers will be good enough to name the WEEKLY TRADE CIRCULAR, as Merchants and Manufacturers always like to know through what channels their notifications have attracted the attention of their customers. The system, moreover, encourages the publication in our columns of a larger assortment of PRICE LISTS and GENERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS, a feature which adds materially to the usefulness of this Journal.

Editors' Copies.

Publishers who can appreciate the importance of an accurate bibliographical record, should, to secure the same, deposit an early copy of each new book they issue, with statement of retail price. The TRADE CIRCULAR is the only paper which aims to give a prompt and complete record of American publications, and is the chief source of information, at home and abroad, for editors of literary and of trade papers, librarians, bookbuyers, and book-sellers.

THE WESTERN NEWS COMPANY.

From the Land Owner (Chicago).

WHILE our telegraph and express companies and the daily newspapers are erecting elegant buildings in which to transact their business in our rebuilt Chicago, the Western News Company, the great artery through which newspapers and all periodical literature reaches the public to a great extent, is not behind them in its preparation for the future, as our illustration of their new building, now being erected on Randolph street, will show. This movement of John R. Walsh, Esq., the President of this Company, is but fitting the great key-stone into the arch of the superstructure whose base is the telegraph, whose lateral columns are the express, and whose crowning pinnacle is the press. For what the telegraph brings to the press, the Western News Company takes up and carries to the world in its thousands of packages on every train leaving Chicago, in the shape of papers yet fresh from the rapid cylinders of Bullock and Hoe.

A few years ago Mr. John R. Walsh laid the foundation of the immense business his Company now enjoys in a very humble way, thousands of our citizens yet remembering his news-stand near the post-office. From this beginning progress has been steady and rapid. Before the fire, the superb store of the Western News Company was the most elegant and well stocked in Booksellers' Row, while its lofts and basement hid away a legion of men engaged in handling the periodicals of the day, and shipping them to every news room in the North-west. Saving only books of account and business papers from the fire, Mr. Walsh resumed business next day in the large basement of the brick block at the corner of West Randolph and Jefferson streets, and his customers received their supplies of papers as usual. These quarters have been enlarged by the addition of several stores, and here the business will be transacted until the completion, early this fall, of the new building.

This structure, designed by John W. Roberts, Esq., architect, will be exactly suited to the business, which, being a peculiar one, requires great room for the handling of newspapers and magazines in bulk. Its internal economy has been worked out with much care by Mr. Walsh. Externally it will present a massive appearance, without any attempt at that cheap gewgaw ornamentation which characterizes so many of our new buildings. Its erection will materially enhance real estate values in its vicinity.

The news-loving and news-buying public will be still better served by this Company on the completion of this building, the erection of which is a source of congratulation from every publisher as well as every reading man in America to the Western News Company, whose success has been so signal and so rapid.

It is stated that more than twenty American and English publishers have sent letters to Dr. Livingstone offering to bring out the record of his last explorations. One publisher had his letter lithographed and sent copies to Gondokoro, Khartoum, Zanzibar, Magdala, Sierra Leone, Cape Town, Gambia, Aden, Simauli, and every other point which it was thought might be reached by the great explorer in his long seclusion.

"LOVE AND VALOUR," by the younger Tom Hood, and "Ethel Mildmay's Folly," are to be added shortly to Osgood's library of novels.

A NOVEL from the pen of Mrs. Lillie Devereaux Blake, somewhat known as a lecturer and writer for periodicals, is to appear in the Fall.

THE Canadian copyright question has been settled by an act authorizing Canadian publishers to reprint and sell any English book on paying the author a royalty of twelve and a half per cent. on the wholesale price of the issue. This is expected to stop all importation of American reprints of English books into Canada, which has been going on at a heavy rate of late years, the duty at the Canada line being twelve and a half per cent., which, by law, went to the author, while Canadian printers and publishers were forbidden, under heavy penalties, to reprint English copyright books. The effect will be to help the Canadian book-manufacturing interests largely, at the expense of that of the United States.

The Subscription Book Trade.

Is the subscription book business eventually to drive out of existence the regular trade? So thinks, at least, the New York Times, which, in a recent editorial on "Book Peddling," said:

"The high prices of book material, and the increasing means of the public libraries, are having a somewhat remarkable effect on the book business of this country. It is well known that there have always been two entirely distinct branches of book-publishing in the United States: the regular trade, dealing through book-stores and book auction sales, which mainly reach the inhabitants of cities and towns, and the more quiet, but vastly extended business, through 'book agents' in country districts. The two are as distinct as any two branches of trade can be. The books of the one are often never heard of among the customers of the other. . . In the [subscription book business the publisher's profits, of course, are large, and the author's receipts small on each copy. People are more and more finding books so expensive and libraries so accommodating, that they are ceasing to patronize the regular trade. They either buy from agents or read in public libraries. Authorship does not pay in America with the regular publishers. This is one reason, among others, that our literature improves so slowly, and our people depend so much on foreign works.

"The agency business is evidently to be the profitable branch of the book business, both for author and publisher; and, as a trade, it will no doubt continually improve. It will present a higher style of pictorial illustrations; for, it must be confessed, that the present is not enlivening to the æsthetic mind. It will offer works of a more original and stronger character, and will gradually fill up the farm-houses of the country with a literature both solid and attractive. It is with books, perhaps, as with articles in shops, the customer likes to be persuaded, and to hear the virtues exalted of the work he would purchase. Then the immense majority of our population live away from libraries, and reading-rooms, and book-shops. The 'agent' is the merchant of the thoughts of the world to them, and brings them near to its civilization. We expect to see an enormous increase of this branch of book-selling and publishing in the future."

We cannot agree with the purport of this article, which, in the main, congratulates the public on "the excellent class of solid books" thus brought to their doors, and looks forward with satisfaction to a prophesied increase of this branch of the business, even to the virtual absorption of the entire trade in books. The hope that "as a trade, it will no doubt continually improve" is sadly dashed by the actual wretched deterioration of character in the majority of subscription books.

The agency business is the natural outgrowth of the conditions of life in a country like our own. In its earlier history especially, educational needs called for some such system. The population was small, the available land practically infinite in extent. The people thus dwelt far apart, and in small villages which could not support a book store; and their intellectual demands, in those days of imperfect education, were satisfied by a small number of standard books, chiefly religious: besides the Bible, such works as "Fox's Book of Martyrs" and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." The colporteur was thus the first "book-agent," and he did immense good. He was the pioneer of education as well as of religion, of the book trade as well as of the church. Upon the foundations laid by him, the success of the publishing business in America is very largely built. And there is still legitimate work for the "book agent" in the sparsely settled regions of the Far West and especially throughout the South. There, particularly, will he find real missionary work again.

Thus excellent in its origin and in its legitimate growth, the book agency business, as it is now for the most part conducted, is simply, like so many other things in the world, an abuse of a good thing. Liquor, tobacco, and opium have done great havoc in the world, but that, while it hides, cannot do away with, the fact that there are uses for them. In the subscription book business it has been found that so-called "enterprising" people can, by going from house to house, sell almost any sort of a book; and the result has been what might have been expected.

It is a good thing for the public that 227,000 copies of Kitto's History of the Bible have been sold to them, or that so useful and sound a book as Smith's Bible Dictionary or so fine an art-work as "Picturesque America" should be brought into many homes. But it is not a good thing for the public that five dollar bills—the hard-earned savings, it may be, of weeks—should be extracted from lean purses for such worthless books as many of the scrap-books of poor essayists for whom the regular trade won't publish, or such absolutely wicked and demoralizing volumes as those which either do tell, or salaciously throw out the bait of telling, in as nasty detail as can be ventured "The Mysteries of Life in the City of Satan." A great proportion of the books issued to-day from Hartford, the headquarters of this business for the whole country, are either actually bad or very like humbug. A gorgeous binding, usually in very bad taste, thick but cheap paper, outrageously poor wood-cuts, the largest type with the thickest leads, add up into a very big, gaudy book, which a glib tongue or persistent boring cheats folks into buying at five dollars, when the reading matter which it contains, if worth anything, would make about a dollar-and-a-half book in the regular trade. So that the business, as now conducted, is mainly bad. Yet it is very true that it is attaining enormous proportions. It is by no means destined to kill the regular trade, but there is no doubt that it is already hurting the latter very much. Many of the regular houses indeed are engaging in it, through branches of their firms, and thus "going over to the enemy." What measures shall be taken to combat the enemy? for there is no doubt that the "book agency" houses are becoming enemies not only to the regular trade but to the public.

It is evident, in the first place, that the advantage of the book agent is not one of price. He gets, in fact, about three times as much for his goods, taking them at their actual worth, as does the regular bookseller. The Times is entirely at sea in talking about the high price of books, when Carlyle's works can be had in beautiful shape at ninety cents a volume, George Eliot's novels, illustrated, at seventy-five, and Dickens' at as low a price as you please. (Though we do not mean to say that the present purchasers of agent's books will buy Carlyle or George Eliot.) In fact, books in the regular trade are very cheap; five dollars nowadays buys almost a library, and that of the best books.

No, the one secret of the agency "business" is—push. It is purely a question of men and means. There are crooks and crannies which the stationed bookseller cannot reach and the agent can; but if the regular trade were more wisely conducted the difference of advantage in these days, when every American village is large enough in a year or so to have a book-store of its own, is really very small. It is the opportunities for underselling and the mistaken ignoring by the publishing trade of the fact that they must support, and that their interests are identified with, the retail trade, that has demoralized and taken the life out of the regular trade and allowed the agency system to attain its present proportions.

The remedy for these evils we shall discuss some other time; we have to do now only with the fact that the trained bookseller, knowing his books and his customers, able to talk intelligently of the right books to the right customers—in other words, the good salesman—is being driven out of the trade because forty and fifty per cent discount practically means only five per cent profit. Books in the trade are no longer pushed, and the trade is therefore cut out by the agents. There is little reason why a good bookseller, in a market village out West, who knows how to keep an attractive open store, should not succeed directly in getting hold of the agent's victims ahead of him, and check-mating that gentleman by giving his customer the worth of his money. Possibly the old system of out-door stalls may be profitably revived, and the bookseller may even fight the agent with his own weapons, and send from house to house to show people what cheap books really are. A contemporary has recently made the suggestion that in summer, watering-place booksellers, especially, should send around neat racks of books to be examined. With his varied stock, he has no need to force upon people what they don't want. Even in publishing expensive works by parts, there is little reason why the regular trade should not re-occupy the field. In fact the regular trade is getting to be too purely indoors; it is losing its vim.

We repeat, that much of the difficulty comes from the evils of underselling and of the rivalry of publishers and retailers. So long as the trade is apathetic, as, from these reasons, it is now, so long will the agency system flourish to its hurt.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20, 1872.—Summer travel and summer lassitude beget a demand for summer reading, and to meet this demand our publishers are bringing out some attractive works. Lippincott has issued during the past week or two, half-a-dozen delightful novels, but most of them have already been reviewed in the advance notices of the TRADE CIRCULAR. "By His Own Might," from the German of Wilhelmine von Hillern, a well-knit and pleasantly told story, ranks first in order of excellence. It is followed by Emily T. Read's excellent novelette, "Aytoun;" "Satanella," a sprightly story of love and horses, by G. J. Whyte-Melville; "Old Margaret," a delightfully absurd tale of the fifteenth century, by Henry Kingsley; and "Thrown Together," a new and good novel by Florence Montgomery—the last just off the press. Another novel published by this house is a peculiarity in its way, being neither more nor less than a political campaign document dressed up in the garb of fiction, and hurled at the heads of the Liberal Republicans. Its title is "Who Would Have Thought It," and its merits more apparent as a political essay than as a work of art.

Lippincott has also issued recently a number of scientific and miscellaneous works. Among them is a series of essays on "Pennsylvania Dutch" (the people not the language) and kindred subjects, by a lady of an observing turn of mind, who spent twenty years in Lancaster county, and made very full and accurate notes of her neighbors' sayings and doings. Another late book from this house is "Wesley and Swedenborg," a comparison of Methodism and Swedenborgianism, by E. R. Keyes, formerly a Methodist minister, now "Pastor of the First New Church Society in Philadelphia." I decline to express any opinion of this book, as religious discussions are outside of my province; but pass on to Prof. J. B. Grier's "Studies in the English of Bunyan," an excellent and well analyzed text-book for students of "English undefyled." I judge from the plan of the work that this volume will be followed by others in the same vein; and if Prof. Grier will accept a friendly suggestion with regard to their style, it shall be that he write a critical review of the great tinker's works for the general public rather than a rigid examination into their grammatical and philological construction, for the exclusive purpose of class-room drill. He seems competent to do this, and he would thereby confer a favor upon the literary world. A "Guide-book of the Lehigh Valley Railroad," compiled by a gentleman in Mauch Chunk, is published by Lippincott for the Railroad Company. It is an exhaustive work, but is more remarkable for statistics than for elegant diction. "Les Français en Amérique pendant la Guerre de l'Indépendance des Etats-Unis, 1777-1783," par Thomas Balch, is an interesting work for readers of French, containing, as it does, many new and interesting reminiscences of Revolutionary times.

Books in press and shortly to be issued by Lippincott include Edward Whymper's graphically told and exquisitely illustrated "Scramble Among the Alps," which has been running through Lippincott's Magazine for about a year. Handsomer wood-cuts than those which are scattered profusely through this book I have never seen in a work of the kind. They are mainly Mr. Whymper's own work—both in drawing and cutting, if I am not mistaken—and the letter-press is worthy of them. The author seems equally at home with pen, pencil, and burin. A new, revised, and copiously illustrated edition of Dr. Cutter's well-known text-book on "Analytic Anatomy" is nearly ready, as is also an essay on "Man in the Past, Present, and Future," translated from the German of Dr. L. Büchner, by W. L. Dallas, of London. This house is also making heavy importations of foreign books.

Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger have published "Fitz-Hugh St. Clair," by Mrs. Salie F. Chapin, a work which I announced some time ago. It is a bitterly rebel novel, spunky as only a woman can be in the face of utter defeat, and written with a force that would make it dangerous if there were anything left to blow up. The same publishers have issued a volume of harmless poems, entitled "Field Flowers," by Mrs. Julia M. Swift, and will soon publish a treatise on "English Literature Considered as an Interpreter of English History," an important work from the pen of President Coppée of Lehigh University. They have also in preparation an entirely new edition of Riddell's "Carpentry and Joinery," a unique and elaborate work with movable models of all its designs.

Peterson is still rushing out his new editions of Cockton's and Dumas' works, being encouraged thereto by a highly satisfactory demand for them. "Valentine Vox" and "The Countess of Charny" are next in order of these authors' novels. "Saint Patrick's Eve," the third volume of the new edition of Charles Lever's works, is just out. "My Hero," by Mrs. Forester, is Peterson's last new novel. It is the autobiography of a girl's love-life, and is written with force and spirit, though the characters are few and the plot very simple. The style is chaste and graphic. "The Reigning Belle," a new novel by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, will soon appear, together with a new edition of Theodore B. Witmer's "Wild Oats Sown Abroad," a very popular work twenty years ago, but out of print for nearly that length of time. The present edition is published at the request of numerous friends of the book, who think it too good to be entirely forgotten.

Barclay & Co. have published "Our General," by Col. C. Linden, of South Carolina, a virulent and reckless attack upon the character of Gen. Grant, who figures as the hero, under the thinly-veiled sobriquet of "Our General." The work is imaginative in the highest degree, there being no attempt to base any portion of it on fact.

The Lutheran Board of Publication has issued a historical novel entitled "Gustavus Vasa, or King and Peasant," translated by J. F. Smith from the German of Gustav Nieritz (16mo, cloth, pp. 258, $1.20). It is a well written and interesting story for boys.

J. M. Stoddard & Co., have brought out a subscription book of 664 octavo pages, under the title of "Republicanism in America," by R. Guy McClellan. This is a political history of the United States, particular attention being paid to the decade ending in 1868, at which date the record closes. The work is a good one, but will have many competitors: It is illustrated with portraits on steel of eminent Americans.

Stoddard & Co. and George Maclean have formed a partnership, under the name of Maclean, Stoddard & Co., for the publication of a new weekly paper. It will be called "To-Day" and will be an illustrated literary journal. Dio Lewis will be the nominal editor, but as he is now in London and has no intention of returning soon, a managing editor will be needed. Who this gentleman is to be is not announced, if, indeed, it is as yet decided. The first number of the paper will appear about September first, and vigorous efforts will be made to give it a good "send-off."

Two of our publishing houses, Alfred Martien and J. P. Skelly & Co., met with a misfortune last Thursday evening (11th) by a fire at their premises, No. 21 South Seventh street. The building was owned by Mr. Martien, who used the third and fourth floors as stereotyping and composing rooms, and the basement as a press-room. The fire broke out early in the evening in the neighborhood of the foundry and burned the upper stories pretty badly. Mr. Martien estimated his loss at $1,500 on the building, but much more in the stock, though he cannot say how much the latter will amount to. He is fully insured and will lose little. Fortunately this week's issue of the Presbyterian has just been worked off and mailed, so that the accident will not interfere with the regular publication of that paper, though it will delay a number of books which were in preparation. J. P. Skelly & Co. had their rooms on the second floor, and sustain a loss of $1,500. No insurance. A number of their new publications will also be delayed.

I omitted to mention in its proper place a thoroughly excellent little volume entitled "Every-day Errors of Speech," by Dr. L. P. Meredith, to be issued in a few days by Lippincott & Co. All the hard words which we are continually stumbling over in writing and speaking are here arranged in dictionary style, with their etymology and definitions according to both Webster and Worcester. Errors in spelling, misuse of words, and faulty pronunciations are all indicated and corrected. The author has found a great many very common errors, and deserves the thanks of everybody whose early education has been neglected. I regret, however, that he has not given us some method of determining how to spell participles. These derivatives were omitted from the spelling-book and dictionary in vogue when I went to school and they have troubled me ever since. I have no doubt there are many others in the same perplexity.

FROM PORTLAND.

PORTLAND, July 20, 1872.—The population of Maine is not large when compared with that of other States of the Union; yet there is more than an average number of persons of education and intelligence. The existence within its borders of three Colleges, one Theological Seminary, four Classical and Normal Schools, and numerous Academies are conclusive evidence that the people of the State give their hearty encouragement to the cause of popular education in all its branches. There are a number of able papers published here which have a large circulation, not a few of which are issued in this city. As the book-publishing interest is naturally and necessarily more closely allied to the newspaper interest than to any other, and as publishers are generally desirous of obtaining information that will enable them to judiciously bestow their advertising, the following brief sketch may be of interest as giving some facts regarding the character and circulation of the papers published in this city.

The leading daily paper is the Portland Press (Republican), published by the Portland Publishing Co. The daily edition has a regular circulation of 3,000 copies, while the weekly issue, which is taken throughout the State, has 5,300 subscribers. Literary items are published in almost every number, and the book notices are ably and candidly written. The editorial corps are men of experience and ability, and the paper exerts great influence in the city and State.

The Argus (Democratic) is an old and well established daily, published by J. M. Adams & Co., of which Mr. Adams is editor-in-chief. The circulation of the daily is 2,700 copies and the weekly edition 3,500 copies. They also publish a tri-weekly edition, the circulation of which, however, is quite small. Considerable pains are taken with the book reviews, and as the paper goes into the families of a good class of business men, it is worth the attention of publishers to see that it has a share of the editors' copies.

The Daily Advertiser (Republican) is published by H. W. Richardson, who also edits the paper. The literary department of this paper is more thoroughly looked after than either of the other dailies, previously mentioned, and though the circulation is smaller, yet the particular prominence given to books and their authors would seem to entitle it to an equal share of the patronage of publishers with the rest. Mr. Richardson is one of the best editors in the State, and is a scholar of acknowledged ability. The circulation of the daily is 1,320 copies; the weekly, 960 copies.

The leading weekly paper in the city, and in fact of Maine, is the Portland Transcript which has a circulation of 18,800 copies. It was established in 1836 and has become an institution which the people of the State, both at home and abroad, feel to be almost indispensable in the family circle. While the paper is manifestly in sympathy with all the great progressive measures of the day, it is independent in politics, though not neutral, and provides its readers with interesting stories and literary and general news. Particular attention is given to literary criticism, and we notice that many leading houses frequently quote opinions of the Transcript, thus showing they regard it as one of the leading literary papers in New England.

The Riverside Echo, a weekly paper, formerly owned and published by the Riverside Echo Publishing Association comes next in order of circulation. It was originally designed to be the organ of the Temperance party, but gradually became more general in its character. Early in last spring it was purchased by H. A. McKenny & Co., subscription book agents in this city. They design to give greater prominence to religious matters, while all the other departments of the paper will be carefully looked after. The editor, Rev. B. P. Snow, was for several years the principal of a high school in Massachusetts, and more recently the pastor of the Congregational church in a neighboring town. The proprietors of the paper are to be congratulated on having secured the services of a gentleman of his experience and superior knowledge of literary matters, and publishers may feel assured that their issues, particularly theological and educational works, will receive appreciative attention. The circulation is 6,000 copies. In addition to the regular weekly edition, they print a monthly edition of 4,000 copies, which are sent to the former subscribers of the Good Seed.

The Zion's Advocate (Baptist), a weekly religious paper, has a circulation of 3,500 copies. The proprietor, Rev. Dr. Shailor, is also the editor of the paper. He gives his personal attention to the book notices, and publishers may feel certain that their publications will receive candid and discriminating reviews. He has been one of the school committee for many years.

The Christian Mirror (Congregationalist), of which T. A. Lord is editor and proprietor, is largely taken by the clergymen of this denomination in the State, and is a good medium for reaching the thinking men of this denomination. Mr. Lord was some years since connected with a leading publishing house in N. Y. city. The circulation is 2,500 copies.

The Star is a weekly paper issued Sunday. The editor and proprietor is Hon. Enoch Knight, a member of the last Legislature. The circulation is 1,500 copies. There is but one monthly periodical issued here which, as its name indicates, is devoted to educational interests. The Maine Journal of Education, published by B. Thurston & Co., and edited by A. P. Stone, who is also principal of the high school in this city, is specially commended to the publishers of school and college text books, though it offers a desirable opportunity for reaching a large and intelligent class of readers.

CLAFLIN.

DEAD LETTER OFFICE.—During the last year there were sent to the Dead Letter Office nearly three millions letters. 68,000 of these letters could not be forwarded owing to the carelessness of the writer in omitting to give the county or State, 400,000 failed to be sent because the writers forgot to put on stamps, and over 3,000 letters were put in the Post Office without any address whatever. In the letters above named was found over $92,000 cash, and drafts, checks, etc., to the value of $3,000,000.

A "THEOLOGIANS' CATALOGUE" is published by N. Tibbals & Son, giving the titles and prices of over three thousand books of theological literature, classified as to subject and alphabetically arranged. Mr. Richard Brinkerhoff has put into the volume his twenty-one years of special experience.

LITERARY AND TRADE GOSSIP.

IN a specimen Spanish dictionary, published at Bogota, Colombia, which proposes to be the most complete ever compiled, the word ojo, (eye), occupies fifteen pages, royal octavo, with citations from eighty-eight authors.

It is rumored that the Rev. Chas. Kingsley (Canon Kingsley) will be offered the editorship of Good Words, left vacant by the death of Dr. Norman Macleod.

DUTY ON PAPER.—In answer to inquiries the Treasury Department has given an opinion that under the new Tariff act, which imposes a duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem on all sized or glued paper suitable only for printing, there will be entitled to entry such paper as is generally used for printing, distinguished from that used for writing or other such purposes. Under this ruling fine glazed paper, such as is used for books, magazines, and illustrated weekly papers, will be admitted at the above-mentioned rate.

THE BOOKSELLERS AND NEWS-AGENTS of London lately held an influential meeting at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet street, at which it was resolved that a mass-meeting of the trades concerned should be called to form a protective association to resist recent encroachments of the proprietors of several periodicals, etc., and to take other steps necessary to protect the interest of the trades. Letters were read from several London agents, who were unable to attend; also from booksellers at Newcastle, Carlisle, Stafford, Manchester, and other towns.

A SERIES of critical studies on Proportional Representation by Signor Francesco Genala have been published under the title of "Della Libertà e Equivalenza dei Suffragi nelle Elezioni."

THE first part of Heinrich Leo's Anglo-Saxon Glossary has just been published. It arranges the words under their root-word, in the order of the root vowels, a, e, i, o, u, gives the theme of the root and its Sanskrit analogue, and then the derivatives, with references to the passages in which these occur.

LOUISA MUHLBACH is writing an historical novel about certain incidents in the life of the Turkish Sultan, Abdul-Medjid.

THE "Revue des Deux Mondes," for June 15, contains a translation of Bret Harte's story of "Miss," prefaced by a warm tribute to the author's genius.

PROF. GIUSEPPE PITRE has published, in Palermo, a review of the progress of literature, science, and art in Sicily during the past year, under the title of "Le Lettere, le Scienze, e le Arti in Sicilia negli anni 1870-1871."

THE Arundel Society will publish, early in the autumn, a selection of transcripts from the well-known collection belonging to the Duke of Devonshire, comprising twenty of the more important of the series known as "The Chatsworth Raphaels," which ranks second only to the Oxford Series. The reproductions will be in autotype, and printed from negatives belonging to the Science and Art Department. The same Society will also publish a work on the Architecture of the Ruined Buildings near Delhi, by Lieut. H. H. Cole, R.E.

PER CONTRA.—"The fresh dispute at Dame Europa's School" shows how the American boy tried to take in the English boy and how the English boy proved too much for him. The brochure appears in England.

HAVING had occasion to call on Messrs. Routledge & Son the day after the 4th, we found their establishment closed with a notice to the effect that it would not be open until Monday following. Such deference to patriotic sentiment, or to the high ranges of the national thermometer, on the part of the only English publishing house in the city, should shame its American brethren into at least a like action.

Two hitherto unknown MSS. by Thackeray are said to have been found in London.

"MY Six Months with the Saints" is the title of a forthcoming book on that prolific subject, the Mormons, by Oscar S. Sawyer.

COL. Thos. W. Knox's "Overland through Asia" is to be translated into Russian and published next fall in St. Petersburg.

AMONG the many "royal roads to learning" which have been originated of late years, to the great comfort of many travellers toward the hill of knowledge, is that broad "public way" through the richest fields of Greek literature, known as "Ancient Classics for English Readers." These volumes are most admirably devised to give those unacquainted with the Greek and Latin languages as adequate an idea as can be had through the medium of another tongue of their great treasures of epic, tragedy, history, and oratory. Thus far Homer, in two volumes, respectively devoted to the Iliad and the Odyssey, Herodotus, Cæsar, Virgil, Horace, Æschylus, Xenophon, Cicero, Sophocles and Pliny have been presented in this excellent shape, and an epitome of Euripides, by Wm. Bodham Donne, is just added to the list. Other volumes are to follow, until the whole field of noteworthy classical literature is covered. The plan of these volumes was excellent, and has been admirably carried out by the capable English scholars to whom the several authors have been entrusted. First is given a study of the times in which the author lived, sufficient to show the bearing of his works; a brief life follows, to which is in most cases appended a critical estimate of his literary character; the body of each volume is made up of epitomes of the works studded with passages from each as "done into English" by the best of each author's translators. The volumes are very neat and convenient, and cost but a dollar each, and no better series could be devised to fulfil this excellent purpose. We especially commend it to teachers, that they may suggest to pupils who are not likely to study the classics directly, this admirable substitute.

THE author of "Tennysonianana" writes to the Athenæum:

Every student of Tennyson will learn with surprise and pleasure that in the fourth volume of the Library Edition of the works of the Poet-Laureate, some additional stanzas, now published for the first time, have been intercalated between the sections hitherto standing as the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth. The new thirty-ninth section takes up the burden of the famous apostrophe to the yew-tree, which occurs almost at the outset of the poem (section 2). Thus it runs:

Old warder of these buried bones,
And answering now my random stroke
With fruitful cloud and living smoke,
Dark yew, that graspest at the stones

And dippest toward the dreamless head,
To thee too comes the golden hour
When flower is feeling after flower;
But Sorrow-fixt upon the dead.

And darkening the dark graves of men.—
What whisper'd from her lying lips?
Thy gloom is kindled at the tips.
And passes into gloom again.

The line italicized is an allusion to the opening stanza of the third section.

PROF. JAS. RUSSELL LOWELL sailed for his contemplated two years' stay in Europe last week, and with him went Mr. Henry Adams, who will remain abroad at least a year. Both the ornamental and working editorial chairs of the North American Review are thus made vacant, and no decision has yet been made as to their successors ad interim.

MRS. ELLIOT, the "Idle Woman in Italy," is engaged on a new work, shortly to appear, called "Old Court Life of France."

MESSRS. CASSELL, PETTER & GALPIN announce that they will shortly publish, in the form of a monthly serial, "The Book of Phrase and Fable," by the Rev. E. Cobham Brewer, LL.D., consisting of about 20,000 examples of familiar words, sayings, allusions, proverbs, pseudonyms, popular titles, local traditions, literary blunders, vulgar errors, etc.

MR. O'SHAUGHNESSY, the English poet, author of "The Lays of Marie de France," will shortly produce a new volume of poems and songs.

THE Chicago Public Library has been so generously aided that, besides the contributions still coming in, it will be able to add what $35,000 will buy during the coming year.

ADVANCE BOOK-NOTES.

Thermic Fever, or Sunstroke, is the title of the Essay, by H. C. Wood, Jr., M.D., which took the Boylston prize at Harvard University. It is divided into four parts, discoursing most thoroughly the "Clinical History," "Nature," "Treatment," and "Sequelæ," of the disease. The views of the author, which have been disputed and even derided, that sunstroke is in the nature of a fever, the sole efficient cause being excess of heat, its progress may be noted by symptoms more or less marked. Death usually results from gradual asphyxia or a simultaneous failure of circulation and respiration. The treatment recommended simply aims to remove the excess of heat before too much harm has been wrought. Mr. Wood has pursued his investigations with remarkable diligence, and presents an interesting record of experiments on animals, and of numerous cases of sunstroke which came under his supervision. He compares his experience with that of numerous other authorities in India and elsewhere, and draws no conclusions but from a sufficient basis of fact. The book is very readable, and will be of great value to the medical profession. J. B. Lippincott & Co. publish it in a neat 12mo of 128 pages.

"BEETHOVEN:"

By Richard Wagner.

Authorized translation from the German, by Albert R. Parsons.

Elegantly bound in cloth, bevelled boards, printed on handsome tinted paper. Price, $1.50, gilt, $1.75.

BENHAM BROS.,

Indianapolis, Ind.

The English translation of this book renders the wealth of thought contained in it accessible to such thinking musicians and lovers of music as are unable to study the work in the original. As to the work itself, it is not a biography: but the musician to whose genius WAGNER offers this tribute of admiration is treated as a typical man of his art, age, and nation. If not to be obtained at your nearest book or music store, address the publishers.

LEE & SHEPARD'S NEW SUMMER BOOKS.

"GATHERING OF THE WITS."

Humorous Readings in Prose and Verse.

By Prof. L. B. MONROE. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

"The reader will be glad to find in this gathering of the wits some of the 'best things' of Lever, Thackeray, Hood, Canning, Jerrold, and Dickens 'cheek by jowl' with the most mirth-compelling creations of Saxe, Holmes, Artemus Ward, Mark Twain, Bret Harte, and others."—Home Journal, N. Y.

"FOR HALF-HOUR STRAY READING."

Miscellaneous Readings in Prose and Verse.

By Prof. L. B. MONROE. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

"About 155 selections in prose and poetry, both from standard modern authors and from many not widely known to fame, but most of them of eminent literary merit. The work is not only useful for the social entertainment of companies, but very pleasant to take down for a half-hour's reading."—Chicago Mail.

"A MODEL OF ITS KIND."

Sea and Shore; or, The Tramps of a Traveller.

By OLIVER OPTIC. 16mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.25.

"The book is a model of its kind. The story of Phil. Farrington and his friend Larry Grimsby is told in that peculiar way which is sure to please the young reader, and which makes the older class of readers unwilling after once beginning the book to lay it down without finishing the story. The various 'tramps' of these young gentlemen in the Bermudas, Norway, Sweden, and along the banks of the Rhine, are well described by the author; as also the unpleasant relations existing between Larry and his cousin Miles."—Commercial Bulletin.

BY THE AUTHOR OF THE "ELM ISLAND STORIES."

The Whispering Pine; or, The Graduates of Radcliffe.

By ELIJAH KELLOGG. 16mo. Illustrated. $1.25.

"Mr. Kellogg, as the author of the Elm Island stories, secured the good opinion of the young people. Some of his later productions have been equally popular; for he has the faculty of telling a story interestingly, and of being both instructive and amusing without being dull or silly. This volume is intended to illustrate both the dangers and pleasures of college life, but particularly to enforce the moral of extending kindness and encouragement to those who have been too 'fast' in their freshmen years to give high promise of a successful graduation."—Albany Journal.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER."

Little Grandmother. By SOPHIE MAY. 24mo. Illustrated. 75 cents.

"There are no more popular books for children than those written by Sophie May, a daughter whom Maine is proud to own. Her stories all have a true Down-East flavor, and they do provoke a good deal of laughter, but it is healthful laughter that doeth good like a medicine. The stories all exert a good influence, and impart lessons of wisdom and virtue while amusing the little folks in a charming way. All the Sabbath schools endorse them, and all the good, kind parents buy them for their children."—Waterville Mail.

"THE MODEL MAGAZINE OF THE WORLD."

Little Bobtail; or, The Wreck of the Penobscot.

The first of OLIVER OPTIC'S new "Yacht Club Series." Illustrated by C. G. BUSH.

RACY! SPARKLING! WITTY!

An American Girl Abroad. By Miss ADELIN TRAFTON. 12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.75.

"She (the American Girl) is bright, gossipy, humorous, and has a sharp eye for 'sights' which interest, and a blind eye to those traditional objects which it is 'the thing' and a bore 'to do.' She is somewhat eccentric and rather wilful, but she never offends, and when you are done with her guidance she bows herself out with a pleasing air, and leaves you not only gratified with the journey, but half in love with the guide."—Christian Era.

BRIGHT! HEALTHFUL! JOLLY!

The Doctor's Daughter. By SOPHIE MAY. 1 vol., 12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.50.

"The Doctor's bright young daughter, Marian, is just the personification of impulsive, noble girlhood, not without faults, and, possibly, many of them, but yet so charming in spite of her mistakes, so lovable, and so genuine, that she takes one's heart by storm."—N. Y. Republican.

"A delightful book, original and enjoyable. Miss Alcott may well look out for her laurels when Sophie May follows her 'Little Women' with such a really refreshing and delightful book as 'The Doctor's Daughter.'"—Riverside Echo.

"A NOVEL WORTH READING."—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

Three Generations. By Miss SARAH A. EMERY.

Illustrated by Miss L. B. HUMPHREY. 8vo. Paper, $1.00; cloth, $1.50.

"In this book the scenes of a deeply interesting story are laid sixty years ago, and all who have a reverence for the past, and care to know what life was in the early days of the nation—every-day life in one of the most noticeable communities of New England—will find in it an entertaining, and we believe accurate report."—Crocker's Literary World.
